- Term Limit considerations for spousal work permits

If the permits of spouses had different end dates, and one of the spouses has a final work permit (due to Term Limit restrictions), and the other spouse's work permit is expiring, the spouse whose permit is expiring may apply for one additional work permit. This one additional work permit's end date will be the same end date as the spousal final work permit.

A person who is eligible for this consideration is a person who- :

- Is married to a worker,
- Is married to a person employed by the Government of the Islands
- Is married to a person employed by the Government of the United Kingdom, in the Islands
- Is married to a person employed by any statutory authority or Government owned company, the employees of which are by law not required to hold work permits
- Is married to a person who is working by operation of law under section 49(2) or 52A(10), or with the permission granted under subsections(4) and (8), and whose right to work in the Islands will expire before that of his spouse
- whose marriage is in opinion of the Board or the Chief Immigration Officer not a marriage of convenience,
- who is not living apart from his spouse under a decree of a competent court or under a deed of separation
- who has not lived apart from his spouse for an aggregate period of three months out of the twelve months immediately preceding the application for the grant in circumstances which, in the opinion of the Board or the Chief Immigration Officer, have led it to conclude that the marriage has broken down.

may apply for a grant or renewal of a work permit. The period granted may not exceed that of the spouse's work permit or any renewal thereof or his employment as aforesaid.

- English language requirements

Prior to arrival in the Islands, a prospective employee whose first language is not English is required to take the overseas English language testing (ELT). This testing requirement is envisioned to be more accommodating and convenient as it will enable persons to make appointments and sit tests in his/her own country prior to travelling to the Cayman Islands.

Arrangements should be made to be tested by one of the two recognized overseas English Testing Centres. These are the International English Language Test (IELTS) and Test of English for International Communication (TOEIC), each of which has test centres operating in multiple countries.

To be successful in this phase of their work permit application a prospective worker must score within the following ranges:

- International English Language Testing System (IELTS): Band Score Level 6 - <https://www.ielts.org>
- Test of English for International Communication (TOEIC): Band Score Level B2 - http://www.ets.org/ept_directory

Prospective employees should arrange to attend a relevant centre in their respective countries. In the event that there is no centre in their country, arrangements may be made at the nearest centre. In this situation only, applicants may travel to the Cayman Islands for testing.

Testing will include competencies in Listening, Reading, Writing and Speaking. Overall scores will include a combination of the four competencies.

If the prospective employee is already in the Cayman they may be required to come to the Department of Immigration Headquarters to take an English test upon approval in principle of the work permit. If found not to possess a sufficient knowledge of the English language, they may have their permission to remain or work permit revoked.

- English Language Translations

All supporting documents that are not in English must be accompanied by an official translation that has been done by a translator who has been approved by the Department of Immigration. Please note that the original foreign language document and the original translation must be submitted with the application. For further information on translation requirements please see the document "Translation Services – Policies and Guidelines."
